After the monarch had wasted a good deal of his pocket money on postage stamps and messages inquiring as to the whereabouts of the money with his head on it, he was told that Colonel A. Loudon, Saperintendent of the Philadelphis Mint, was making designs and that the dies would soon be cast. Then some legal gentlemen at Washington started an investigation into the constitutionality of Uncle Sam making coins for other nations. On Monday last it was decided that Uncle Sam could do it, if he liked.

Yesterday Colonel Snowden showed a reporter some drawings for the dies. The precise design has not been fixed on. On one side of the coin will be the King's face and on the other a portion of the great seal of his country. The denominations of the coins will be indicated in the Hawaiian and English languages. There will be "akahi dalas," "hapalua dalas" and "hapahas," or dollars, half dollars and quarters respectively. There will likewise be dimes, but the name of that a gile piece of silver has not yet been translated into Hawaiian. In size and weight the money will be equal to united States denomination. As soon as the designs have been decided on the dies will probably be sent to San Francisco, where the first batch of money, to the value of one million dollars will, it is said, be made, the Mint at that place being the nearest to the Kalakauan lands.

American Agriculturist.

There is nothing better for laying hens in the spring than milk, after the cream has been taken off. We have tried it several seasons with complete success. With the milk given fresh from the dairy room every day, the fowls will need no other drink, and it will supply everything required in the way of animal food. The pullets fed with milk and corn, and a mixture of corn meal and milk, through the cold weather, have given an abundant supply of eggs. Wheat bran is also a good article to mix with the milk. It is better to give the mixture a boiling and to feed it in the warm state, but this is not necessary. We have also found the milk one of the best kind of diet for young chickens, soon after they come from the nest, to promote their health and rapid growth. Indian meal, ground coarse, and scalded with milk, is a perfect feed for them. As they grow older, grass, cabbage, or onions, may be chopped fine and added to the daily farms, usually going to the pig trough, may be diverted to the chicken coop with great advantage. Eggs are worth twenty-five merican Agriculturist.

The following letter was written by Peter Cooper to Mr. E. F. Gladwin, of Brooklynl not long ago:

Mr. Edgar F. Gladwin—Mankind will improve and better their condition just in proportion, ins they come to see, know and understand that what a man, a community, understand that what a man, a community, a State, or nation soweth, that must they also reap somewhere, somehow, and at some time, and that by the operation of a reign of beneficent laws, designed in infinite wisdom for the use and the elevation of mankind. Man without knowledge is a soulless body; without science he is a straysoulless between the science he is a straysoulless between the science he is a straysoulless body; without science he is a straysoulless body; which is a science he is a straysoulless body; which is a science he is a straysoulless body; which is a science he is a straysoulless body; where the science he is a of marking. sala white science he is a straying wanderer. Science is knowledge demonstrated by the actual experience of manikind. DeWitt Clinton in a moment of inspiration uttered this sentiment: "Pleasure is a shadow, wealth a vanity, power is pageant; but knowledge is ecstatic enjoyment, perennial, unlimited in space and infinite in duration." Where His Frogship Dwelt.

Savannah News.

A few years ago, when Mr. James Ter-rentine, of Houston, was in life and resid-ing in that county, he cut a large oak down and split it open and found in the centre of the tree an ordinary frog, alive and aparently in health. There was no entrance r aperture in the trunk by which the frog or aperture in the trunk by which the frog could have entered, but was perfectly sound and solid and just space enough for the little animal to occupy. How the frog got there and lived is a mystery. A theory, however, is that it got into a small cavity in the side of the tree when it was a small sapling and the tree grew around the cavity and encased the frog. The tree was quite large and this animal must have lived at least twenty or thirty years without even a breath of air.

When Kalakaua, King of the Hawaiian Islands, was in this country, last summer, he surprised his Ministers by telling them that when he returned home he would establish a mint. After it had been represented to him that as a business enterprise this would not pay, he relented so far as to permit of his coins being made in some one class's mint. He was to have coins distinctly Hawaiian, anyway, and they were to have his profile on them; that settled it. Heretofore American and English coins had been current. His Minister at Washington, the late Mr. Carter, puzzled it out and had interviews with government of ticals about it. Kalakaua soon began to get impatient and sent cipher messages asking for the coins. He was going to have pictures of himself when he was in his prime, and not wait till baldness and sgo overtook him.
